Not illustrated. 1908 Excerpt: ... the opportunities offered in the West. As it is they are rapidly being transformed into Americans. The great social service of the organized Jewish charities in this transformation process is selfevident. If these Russian Jews, ignorant of the language and with their low standard of living, were plumped down into the West--into Kansas City, for instance--with no one to look after them, they would starve for a few days and then would drift into the ranks of unskilled labor with the chances against their ever rising. With the aid of the Charity Organization Society they are able to start above the poverty level. So they have a chance to look about with a view to improving their condition. First they see the need of learning English. This is provided for by the night schools of the Jewish organization--which ought to be supplanted by public night schools. And then they begin to look for a better job. A capmaker, who in Russia had made only a few dollars a month when he could get work, was started in Kansas City at $10 a week, which soon was raised to $12. That was opulence and he lived with the joy of a millionaire until he made a discovery. Then he went to Mr. Billikopf with a grievance. "What's the matter?" inquired the superintendent. "Aren't you getting on all right?" "Yes," was the reply, "only I have heard that Cohen, who isn't any better capmaker than I, is getting $18. When shall I be getting $18?" That discontent was the evidence of the Russian capmaker's Americanization. And that is one of the fruits of the Galveston movement.
