Thirty Days To A Better SAT Verbal Score WORKBOOK John Thompson

In the USA (when I was in school) if you wanted to earn a high verbal score, you had to buy a book and start studying. There was no systematic plan, just pages of words to memorize.

When I taught in Korea, I learned that students would take an eight week class in different subjects, including the verbal SAT. In each class students would learn 10 words. They would have a book, but they would copy 10 words per class into a notebook. Then they studied them for homework, and were quizzed on them when they came to class.

Students didn't learn all of the words in one eight week session, but they increased their academic vocabulary by at least 300 words. This book aims to do the same thing. Students need a notebook, and a dictionary (even online ones are good for this). There will be 30 days of lists. 300 words will be learned during this time.

Practice makes perfect. Using this e-book workbook you can start to increase your SAT vocabulary, and do better on your SAT exam.
